War And Other Claims.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—It was announced here today that Andrew C. Carnegie has given $750,000 for the construction of a building to be used by the Bureau of American Republics.
Site Chosen
The provisions for the site have already been made by the United States and the South American republics' representatives.

THIRTY THOUSAND POUNDS OF TURKEY

Shipped from Koshkonong to Waldorf-Astoria Hotel of New York
—Ft. Atkinson News.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Fort Atkinson, Jan. 3.—Edward Bingham of Koshkonong is kept more than busy in supplying the Waldorf-Astoria hotel of New York city with turkeys and eggs. He is reported to have shipped 30,000 pounds of dressed turkeys recently, and ships nearly one hundred dozen eggs daily.
Warehouses to Open
The tobacco warehouses near the North-Western freight depot will start sorting tobacco next Monday. As usual La Verne Wooden will have charge for C. R. Bentley of Edgerton. About thirty-five hands will be employed.

Eagles Enter Fort
An eagle of eagles will be organized in Fort Atkinson in the near future. The order already has a number of resident members belonging to out-of-town eyes.
Special services in commemoration of the new year were held at a number of the city churches. At the Evangelical Friends church, the pastor gave a short talk on New Year's eve, bringing in a number of thoughts appropriate to the season. Short services were also held New Year's morning. St. Joseph's Catholic church held their usual service at half-past eight New Year's morning. Watch night services were held at St. Paul's Lutheran church, and at midnight the chimes welcomed the New Year. There were also appropriate services the following day which were largely attended.

New Letter Carrier
Harrison Boughten made his initial trip as substitute letter carrier New Year's day. He takes the place left vacant by Robert Burchard, who has been promoted to carrier on route No. 2, formerly served by Harry Jacob.

Anniversary of Fire
Next Saturday, Jan. 5th, is the first anniversary of the great $100,000 North-Western fire which came so near destroying the entire north side.

COLLEGE CLUBS ARE NOT SATISFIED NOW

The Musical Organizations Did Not Do Well on Their Recent Trips of Concerts.
(By Cleveland.)

Beloit, Wis., Jan. 4.—The Beloit College Glee club, which this year tried the experiment of taking its annual trip during the Christmas recess, will probably go back to the old custom of giving its series of concerts during the spring vacation. Manager J. Cuyler Baker said today he thought the Christmas season too busy a time to try to get people out to a glee club concert, although the trip this year was fairly satisfactory. The home concert will be given next week Friday night.

Dr. E. R. Downing of the North Michigan Normal school lectured at the public library building yesterday afternoon on "The Making of a World." The lecture was given before the West Side Fortnightly club and was the first secured by a women's club to which admission was general.

Dr. H. G. Stubbs, president of the Luther seminary of St. Paul, who witnessed the crowning of King Haakon of Norway, will lecture here on that subject next Tuesday evening in connection with a concert by the glee club of his institution.

BISHOP JOHN SHANLEY FIFTY-FIVE YEARS OLD

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Fargo, N. D., Jan. 4.—Rev. John Shanley, Roman Catholic bishop of Fargo, was fifty-five years old today and numerous messages of congratulation were received at the bishop's house. Bishop Shanley is a native of New York state, but lived the greater part of his life in St. Paul. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1874 and has been bishop of Fargo since 1889.

King Winter—It's about time for us to be reading a few "In Winter's Grip" headlines in the papers.

COURT-MARTIAL OF INTEREST TO ALL

Army Trials of Officers Implicated in Brownsville Raid Will be Postponed.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—This was the date fixed by Brig. Gen. William C. McCaskey, commander of the department of Texas, for a court martial to convene at San Antonio for the investigation of the conduct of Major Charles W. Penrose and Capt. Edgar A. MacKlin at Brownsville during the outbreak of the negro troops. It is likely, however, that the court martial proceedings will be deferred for several weeks or until the complete recovery of Capt. MacKlin, who is suffering from the wound recently inflicted upon him by a negro trooper. The middle of February is now regarded as the probable time for the trial. The court martial proceedings, whether they take place now or later, will be followed with great public interest, as they are expected to develop all the facts connected with the Brownsville raid and to settle beyond controversy whether colored troops took part in it.

IMMENSE POULTRY SHOW IN DETROIT, MICHIGAN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Detroit, Mich., Jan. 4.—The Light Guard armory was one clamorous cauldron today. It was the opening day of the Michigan State Poultry association's annual show. With several thousand fowls, including about every known variety and all speaking in different tongues, it is not to be wondered that the vicinity of the armory sounded pretty much like a concentrated collection of barnyards. Superintendent E. C. Hangerford and other leading members of the association throughout the state have been working hard for some months past and the result of their efforts is the best exhibition of poultry and pet stock ever seen in this section. The display of prize-winning turkeys, chickens, geese, ducks and other fowls is exceptionally large. A separate department is filled with bantams, pigeons, rabbits and other small animals whose delicate constitutions and aristocratic pedigrees will not allow of their mixing with the common element. During the week that the show will continue there will be daily meetings of various clubs and associations for the encouragement of fancy poultry breeding.

CANDIDATES FOR SPEAKER ESTABLISH HEADQUARTERS

BEGIN INVESTIGATION OF THE RAILROADS' SYSTEMS

Southern Pacific And Union Pacific Roads
Must Explain Certain Matters.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Jan. 4.—The interstate commerce commission began today an inquiry in this city into the affairs of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific railway systems. The underlying purposes of the investigation are to discover whether or not the two railway lines are natural competitors, or whether there is an agreement between them that may be construed as in restraint of trade under the Sherman anti-trust act.
After the B. & O.—An inquiry into the operation of the block signal systems of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and the Southern railway was instituted today by the interstate commerce commission.

LEGISLATION TO PREVENT FREIGHT CAR SHORTAGE

Shippers Are Penalized For Delays In Loading--Why Should Rule Not Work
Both Ways?

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 4.—A considerable number of the large shippers throughout the country, representing various industries, gathered in Chicago today to discuss the car shortage problem. The lumbermen's association took the initiative in bringing them together to exchange ideas and to recommend informally some solution. The majority appear in favor of federal legislation penalizing the railroads for failure to deliver cars requisitioned by shippers, after a reasonable time.

In calling the gathering to order the chairman explained the chief purpose of the present movement to be to secure the enactment of a federal law requiring the assessment and payment of reciprocal demurrage. Under such a law, the speaker further explained, the railroads themselves would be penalized for failing to provide shippers with cars within a reasonable time after their requisition, just as the shippers are now penalized for failing to load cars delivered within a reasonable time. Such a law, he said, would go a long way toward relieving the car shortage now existing, and would prevent its recurrence and the enormous accompanying losses in the future.

NATURAL GAS MAINS EXPLODE AT AKRON

City of Cleveland Suffers From Lack of Gas for Cooking and Lighting.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Cleveland, O., Jan. 4.—As a result of an explosion in a big 18-inch main carrying natural gas from West Virginia to Cleveland early today near Akron this city was entirely cut off from its natural gas supply. Thousands of residences and business places were suddenly deprived of fuel and light, causing much suffering.

MRS. MYERS TO HANG ON DAY SCHEDULED

ANCIENT CUSTOM
OF PROPHECYING

FORETELLING COMING WEATHER
NOT A NEW FEATURE.

HANDED DOWN THROUGH AGES

Many Conditions Have Much to Do with the Existing Conditions of Forecasts.

Way back in the days of the cave-dwellers and in the times when our forefathers used stone weapons and lived by the hunt and warfare, seers existed who foretold the weather for the coming periods of time. This ability has been handed down through the ages that have intervened
until today we find regular weather prophecies employed by the government to send out warnings of cold waves, storms and snows twenty-four hours in advance. These men do their work in a scientific manner, made their announcements based upon careful consideration of the existing conditions in different parts of the country in the previous twenty-four hours.

The Old Methods
Weather prophecies have been common through all ages. The cold of the coming winter has been predicted by signs of nature. If the wild goose bones were of a certain quality it would be cold or warm. If the squirrels and animals that live on nuts and roots laid in a large store
there would be lots of snow and if the beavers and muskrats built their houses high out of the water the ice would be thick. These signs have been handed down from year to year
by the old men of the communities until they have become to be believed by many. Rev. I. H. Hicks of St. Louis forecasts for the whole year in advance. That is, he foretells the possible conditions that may arise, basing his observations upon meteorological conditions. Like the ancient star-gazers of former days his methods are based upon conditions in which the location of the earth with the heavens is used as a basis for determining possible conditions.

Old Sayings
One of the interesting methods of foretelling the weather for a year to come is handed down to us from the eighteenth century and is as follows:
January—"The three first days of January rule the coming three months."

February—"If February give much snow a fine summer it doth foretell."

March—"So many frosts in March,
so many in May."

April—"If the three first days of April be foggy there will be a flood
in June."

May—"If on May 1st it rains, the year will be a good harvest."

June—"A wet June makes a dry September."

July—"If July 1st be rainy weather
it will rain more or less for four weeks together."

August—"A fog in August indicates a severe winter and plenty of snow."

September—"If the storms in September clear off warm all the storms
of the following winter will be warm.
If on Sept. 19 there is a storm from the south a mild winter may be expected."

October—"When it freezes, and snows in October January will bring mild weather. If October bring heavy frosts and wind then January and February will be mild."

November—"If there's ice in November that will bear a load there'll
be nothing after but sludge and muck.
As No. 21 is so the winter."

December—"From Dec. 25 to Jan.
5 these twelve days are said to be the keys of the weather for the whole year. As the wind and the weather

at the equinoxes so will they be for the next three months."

Hicks' Forecast
Rev. Hicks in making his predictions for January divides the month into five storm periods following the phases of the moon. The first period is to culminate tomorrow, the fifth,
at which time a cold wave will have spread over west and north. This will extend to the 12th. Storms are to come the 11th and 12th, even amounting to blizzards in some parts of the country. Another severe cold will reach this section about the 13 to 16th. On the 15th these series of storms will culminate in renewed storms. The 26th is again to see snow squalls and the 28th is also scheduled for a bad storm period. On the 27th a decided fall in temperature will be noted and it will extend from the west to the east. Within thirty-six hours of the 29th rain in the south and snow and sleet in the north will be apparent. The last five days of January are to be the worst.

FROM DENVER TO
SALT LAKE CITY

WESTERN TRIP DESCRIBED BY BESSIE GRAVES.

Formerly Lived in Janesville and Attended High School Here in 1900, 1901 and 1902.

The west is always interesting to every American, but when described by an acquaintance it is doubly so.
Below is a description of a trip from Denver, Colo., to Salt Lake City, Utah, written by Bessie Graves, a former Janesville resident. Miss Graves attended the public schools of Janesville
and spent three years, 1900, 1901,
and 1902, in the local high school.

The Description
"In July during my vacation from my position as postmistress at Ar-riba, Lincoln county, Colorado, (I might also add I homesteaded and have a ranch of 160 acres of land close to my office) a girl friend of mine from Nebraska and I started for Denver and points west. Between Ar-riba and Denver three years ago it was really one vast stretch of prairie, but it is being settled very rapidly by farmers and those wanting land. You can now see many nice fields of produce, and buildings going up in a great many places, but there is still room for thousands more. If the people realized how easily they could get homes! Those wanting to come to Colorado should come at least and see what a delightful climate and water
we have.

"After you leave Denver for Colorado Springs you can see Ft. Logan, ten miles from Denver, the second finest United States army post in the Union; Wolcott, the beautiful suburban home of Senator Wolcott; Castle Rock, a great rock rising from the plains; Casco Blanca, another great white rock that resembles a castle; and Palmer lake, a lake which is on the exact summit of the divide.

"Snow-balls and Flowers"
"Seventy-five miles from Denver we came to Colorado Springs, one of the finest summer resorts of the west.
Here we stayed four days. The day after we arrived here we spent in Manitou, a small town of itself and yet connected with Colorado Springs.
About every other store in this place is a 'curio shop.' Here are three springs—soda, iron and sulphur. A great many people come here just to drink these waters. The next day about 9 o'clock we started for the summit of Pike's Peak. While we were on the summit snow fell and we made snowballs and picked flowers
all within five minutes. Some people say that nothing can grow up there as it is so cold, but we found a small white flower, some moss and bits of grass, but it looked almost as though they were growing right out of solid rock. Going up Pike's Peak one engine of the 'big road' takes one coach only, but this coach holds about fifty people and it precedes the engine going up and follows it on the descent. The trains stop several times on the way up. The first halt is at Manitou, a hamlet of rustic cottages, snugly in a tiny park.
The next stop is at the halfway house,
a rustic mountain hotel surrounded by pine trees and towering above it is Hell Gate through which the train passes. Part way up this mountain is a rock that looks like a lone fisherman sitting away out on the edge of another great rock. There are six stations on the line besides the terminals and three water tanks, for the engines take a great deal of water to climb this 'monument of the continent' as it is rightly called. At one of these stations may be seen the apparent phenomenon of water flowing up hill in an open trough. Another illusion that excites comment is in the grade. Every inch of the road is up and yet when approaching a moderate from a steeper grade any one would declare that the track was down grade.

Souvenir Daily Paper
"Among other surprises is a printing office on the mountain side, where a daily souvenir paper is printed with the names of the visitors, illustrations, descriptions, etc. Above the halfway house is the timber line. You can just see a regular line to which the trees grow, some of which are only a few feet high and yet are old trees. Above this is Windy Point, where, as we rounded the curve, the wind commenced blowing, or it seemed that way, very hard and very cold.
Really, the wind is blowing at this point all the time but it strikes us
so suddenly that it seems as though it has only commenced blowing.
Away below we could see Lake Moraine which is, itself, high in the hills. The thick clouds, unless the lake is exceedingly fair, hang far below us. Then the top—here the view is grand; to the west stand a thousand peaks, and on the east the vast plain. On the top is the Summit Hotel and on the top of that is a steel tower in which is a powerful telescope. Eighty miles from here Denver can be recognized through this telescope; to the south, Pueblo, the Pittsburg of the west; to the west,
Cripple Creek, and to the east, Mani-tous, Colorado Springs, which is fourteen miles away, is brought so close to the observer through this telescope that the signs on the stores may be read.

In the Garden of the Gods
"The top of the peak is covered with big rocks, mostly in cube and rectangular shapes. The 'Bottomless Pit' and 'Abyss of Desolation' are great holes in the top of this mountain into which the snow never finds its way and the snows of centuries lie there. The Summit Hotel is a large building to accommodate people who wish to stay over night to see the sunrise and sunset. There are surprise excursions that go up every week and large crowds attend these. Within the building is a Western Union telephone station, the highest in the world, also a lunch room and souvenir store. A photograph is taken of each train before it leaves
for the base of the mountain.

"We came down about noon, then walked through the 'Garden of the Gods.' This is a garden in which almost every rock represents something, the most important of which are 'The Baggage Room,' great rocks piled one on top of the other like trunks; 'Mushroom Park'; 'The Porcupine'; 'Steamboat Rock'; 'Balanced Rock'; 'The Eagle'; 'Hanging Rock'; 'The Old Man's Wine Glass';

'The Kissing Camels'; 'The Old Washer' Woman'; and many others. In a curio store just outside of the garden is a petrified Indian in a glass case.
"The next day we went through South Cheyenne Canon. Here we saw the 'Pillars of Hercules,' 'Prospect Dome' and a man's face on a rock. We walked to the top of the Seven Falls and from there took bur-ros and rode to the top of the mountain on which Helen Hunt (Jackson) was buried. Coming back down it seemed at times almost as though the little burros would fall, but when they put their foot down it was there to stay, and no slipping or falling for them. Going down the steps at the side of the falls we saw the rainbow, and, oh, it was beautiful! The last one of the falls is called the 'Bridal Veil' Falls, as it so much resembles a beautiful bridal veil.

Eighty Miles of Chasm
"After leaving Colorado Springs we went through Pueblo and Canon City, where the state penitentiary is located, then through the Grand Canon of the Arkansas, through which flows the great river. This world-famed chasm is eight miles long. Half way through this canon is the Royal Gorge. The best view can be obtained from the famous Hanging Bridge;
here great walls of rock rise perpendicularly 3000 feet. From this canon we passed through Salida. From the train you can see the Collegiate Peaks, Princeton, Harvard and Yale.
We could also see the Mount of the Holy Cross. There is a perfect cross on the side of this mountain, the upright of which is about 1500 feet and the arms about 750 feet in length.

"From Colorado Springs we started for Glenwood Springs, but wishing to see all of the scenery, we stopped at Red Cliff, a little mining town, overnight. The next day we again left for Glenwood Springs and on the way
passed through Eagle River, Canon, where there are shaft houses, and dwellings of miners all along the sides and summit. Some of these shafts are being worked now, but most of them are lying idle.

"At the summit of a hill to the right is Minnie, reached is the 'Lioness.' This is an imitation in stone of the head of a lioness. Next we passed through the canon of the 'Grand river, which is sixteen miles in length. Here the scenery is varied, first great rocks, then with bright caves and strange shapes. The road curves around a huge cliff to the left, while to the right are the river and perpendicular walls of the canon.
Near there are the beautiful Shoshone Falls. After passing through these gates the Portals are reached. On each side are rocks over 2000 feet high and the road and river fills the space between.

"We arrived at Glenwood Springs about noon, but did not leave our room till the next day. This place is another great health resort. The springs are several blocks from the city, at which place there is one large hot spring which contains a great deal of salt and sulphur. There are several other hot springs, but none to drink from. The sulphur water runs into a large bathing pool near which are also several caves, one being a hot vapor cave for people to take vapor baths. Another interesting cave is the Fairies' Cave on top of Iron Mt. It took us two hours to climb this mountain, but we descended in thirty-five minutes. This cave is filled with stalactites, stalagmites
and crystals, and is partitioned off into several rooms. From the top of this mountain you can see Mt. Sopris, Lookout Mountain and Sunset Mountain.

Off for Salt Lake City
"We stayed in Glenwood Springs
four days, then left for Salt Lake City. On the way we passed through Castle Gate, which is something like the entrance to the Garden of the Gods. On one side is a rock 500 feet high and on the other side another 450 feet high. On one of these rocks is a flagstaff which was placed there years ago with a flag on it, but now
the flag is left, but the old flagstaff.
Several attempts have been made to put another flag in the old one's place but all have been fruitless. We passed to the Wasatch Range and stopped on older Summit, so-called from one of General Johnson's soldiers dying and being buried here, in their march across the country. Here all the brakes are tested before the descent is made. Part way down is a safety switch that is for a train to run into
in case it gets to running over a certain speed. As we left these mountains and moved westward we passed through the Utah Valley and by Utah
lake and soon came to a small river of yellow water which is called the River Jordan, because it connects Utah lake with Great Salt Lake as its namesake does Galilee and the Dead Sea. Just before we arrived in Salt Lake City we could see the great

THE NEAR GREAT

A correspondent of the Saturday Evening Post, has written a series of articles on "Who is who, the great and the near great?" There are two classes of men who train in the ranks of the near great. The first, and by far the most numerous, are the men who aspire to positions which they could never fill, and yet who are near enough the front to stimulate aspirations.

The second are found in the directorate of all corporations, ready and thoroughly equipped at any time, to take on responsibility. This fact has been strongly emphasized within the past month.

The sudden death of President Cassatt of the Pennsylvania railroad was a great shock to the business world. Mr. Cassatt was one of a very small group of great American railroad men, and without disparagement to either Harriman or Hill, it is safe to say that in some respects he was superior. A great organizer, a great manager and a great financier, he presided over the best railway system that the country has ever produced. When he dropped dead, in the zenith of his usefulness, the first question asked was, "Who can he be found to take up his work?" and two or three men were mentioned as his possible successors, but when the board of directors met, a day or two ago, fourteen of the seventeen men said, the best man to fill the vacancy is James McGraw of Pittsburgh, and the man who stood on the threshold of greatness, now stands in the limelight, to be tested. That he will make good, is assured by the men who know him, and who have honored him with their support.

The same conditions prevailed, not long ago, when President Spencer, of the Georgia Southern, was killed in a wreck. Mr. Spencer was the railroad king of the south, and his death came to the southern states, as a personal loss, but a man of the near great class was found to step into the breach, and the work goes on.

Thus it is in all large corporations, good men in every department are always close to the front, ready to assume responsibility, as occasion demands. There is no place so important that it can not be filled by the near great, whose discovery is sometimes a surprise.

What is true of the large corporations, is equally true in all lines of business. Changes caused by death or removal are constantly occurring, and the man next in line, is the natural man to fill the vacancy, but it frequently happens that there is no man in line.

The "near great" column is a good column to train in. It is the first step in the road to advancement, and it is also free from unrest and annoyance by agitators. Time-servers never infest this domain, and the association of time-servers is never profitable.

TOO MUCH AUTHORITY

There are some questions of law which the supreme court of the United States, recognized as the court of last appeal, is always called on to settle, and it is well for the nation that this is the fact, and especially in those days of busy reform.

Some people are possessed of the notion that the interstate commerce commission is the highest tribunal in the land, and the commission itself seemed possessed of the same notion.

The last congress passed a law defining the duties and authority of this commission, and then the commission becomes a law-making body and assumes a lot of authority outside of its jurisdiction.

The lower house of congress, under the pressure of public clamor, frequently passes measures which are unconstitutional, and but for a conservative level-headed senate, the nation would be in court most of the time.

The President himself is a good deal of a plunger, and when he wants a thing he wants it bad, and authority is assumed without question. He has been a strong advocate of the employers' liability act, and is much disappointed at the late rulings of Judge Evans of Kentucky and Judge McCall of Tennessee. They decide that the act is unconstitutional, and now the President proposes to have it submitted to the supreme court of the United States.

A little advice from that authority in the first place might have saved annoyance. The question of state rights and state sovereignty is involved, and these are important legal questions. The Chicago Chronicle, in discussing hasty legislation on the part of congress says:

"As a matter of fact, congress has been moving pretty rapidly of late. Beginning with the undeniable truth that congress has power to regulate interstate commerce, it has stretched the granted power so as to make it cover the regulation of things or legislation about things which are not interstate commerce or commerce of any kind."

"Congress has made some progress along the line of the assumption that because it has power to regulate interstate commerce it has power to regulate all the affairs of everybody engaged in that commerce from railroads to shippers and consignees and the employees of all the parties and of those who have any sort of business relations with them."

"Congress has power to regulate interstate commerce. Most of the railroads are engaged in this commerce to a greater or less extent. But it does not follow that the mutual duties and obligations of the railroad companies and their train crews, their switchmen and other employees are interstate commerce and as such subject to regulation and control by act of congress."

"When the courts say this they do not set up any ultra doctrine of state sovereignty. They merely call the attention of congress to the fact that there is a great difference between commerce and the other things mentioned and that the power to regulate the one does not include the right to regulate or legislate about the others."

"When congress is reminded of this it may decide to go slowly with some projects of legislation that are slated for its consideration. It may think best not to treat granted powers as elastic blankets and try to stretch them to cover everything in the heavens above and the earth beneath. A sharp recall to fundamental constitutional principles now and then is salutary."

"Of course, the supreme court may reverse the district courts. But in the Louisville and Memphis cases it looks as though the lower courts were too closely in harmony with the principles laid down by Justice Harlan to be reversed."

The Phillips family in Milwaukee, planned to start a training school for girls, and arranged for a cinch party at the Pistor hotel, to help the good cause along, but the domestic relations at the Phillips domicile, became strained, and Mrs. Phillips escaped to New York with all her belongings but a wash-tub. The school and the party was declared off. Life in the Cream City is a continuous round of pleasure and excitement.

The old year closed and the new year opened with two of the worst railroad wrecks on record. There is plenty of room for reform, and until some automatic system is discovered, which is absolute, the companies will do well to consider the fact that $40 a month don't buy very much in the way of railroad brain capacity.

The bankrupt Zionites have had a rude awakening, and some of them are not equal to the strain. Insanity, suicide, and sudden death are frequent tragedies resulting from an unbalanced mind, and Zion City is contributing freely to the list. The wreckage of a faith is never pleasant to contemplate.

Life insurance, in the future, will be done on a business basis, and the man who buys it will get somewhere near value received. Premiums have been reduced, as well as commissions, and a stock company will soon enter the field. This is as it should be. The time to pay a dividend, is when the premium is collected.

When the government collects $125,000,000 from the Standard Oil company, the nation can afford to take a day off for a picnic. It is very easy to see that the rank and file will be able to live without work before the century is very old, and the good work will be accomplished decently and in order.

The reform school board of Chicago spent four hours last week in discussing whether or not they should sell a ten-dollar doll-house that had long been accumulating dust in the attic. The board is a brainy organization and equal to most any emergency.

MOLDERS ARE SENT TO JAIL.

Leaders of Milwaukee Strike Sentenced for Violating Injunction.

Milwaukee, Jan. 4.—Judge A. L. Sanborn, of the United States district court, pronounced judgment Thursday evening in the cases growing out of the contempt proceedings which were brought, alleging violation of the injunction granted the Allis-Chalmers company against the Molders' unions and striking molders. No fines were imposed, but in each case where found guilty the judgment was for imprisonment in the county jail. Michael Matzbaum, chairman of the strike committee of Iron Molders' union No. 125, and John Lutz, treasurer of the strike committee of the same union, were sentenced to imprisonment in the county jail for 30 days. William Henning, convicted of assault, was sentenced to 40 days in jail. Two pickets were given 30 days each and two other strikers were given sentences of 15 days.

GIRL'S SKULL FRACTURED.

Mysterious Assault on Miss Alice Gray of St. Louis.

St. Louis, Jan. 4.—Miss Alice R. Gray, aged 23 years, niece of James R. Gray, clerk of the United States circuit and district courts, was attacked on the street near her home in Webster Groves, a suburb, Wednesday night, and struck on the head with a baseball bat. The force of the blow broke the bat and knocked her senseless. She was found and taken to St. John's hospital where her condition is pronounced very serious. Her skull is fractured and if she recovers she may be deaf. She was not robbed and the motive for the assault is not known. Her assailant escaped.

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

Two New Incorporations: Articles of incorporation of the Normandy Land Co. of Janesville, capital $5,000, and the Franklin Land & Timber Co. of Janesville, capital $6,000, with Allen P. and Henry Stow Lovjoy and W. G. Wheeler as incorporators, in both instances, have been filed with the register of deeds. The companies are authorized to buy and sell real estate, reclaim wet, submerged, or swamp lands; construct, maintain, and operate drains, canals, and ditches; and engage in lumbering, logging, and the driving of logs.

Pleasantly Surprised: Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Fox were pleasantly surprised last evening by about thirty of their friends. The party was a very enjoyable affair for all participants. The evening was spent in playing progressive clinch. The prizes were a beautiful plate and smoking set, and were won by Mrs. Rob and Hofferly. At the conclusion of the card-playing a delicious two-course luncheon was served.

SEVERAL HAVE GONE THROUGH THE ICE

Colder Weather Welcomed by Skaters—River Has Been Unsafe in Many Places.

Last night's drop in temperature was most welcome to Janesville lovers of skating. During the past two weeks the ice on the gas house pond, on portions of the river above the dam and in Monterey, has been good at times, while at others it has not only been soft but unsafe. Several boys have gone through and narrowly escaped drowning during the last few days. Early in the week a fifteen-year-old lad by the name of Peter-son broke through just north of Goose Island. The ice was so thin that when he came to the surface his head broke through and came out into the air. He was immediately rescued by his playmates. Elbridge Fifield, son of Frank E. Fifield, was another to receive a ducking.

CELEBRATE THE DAY OUT IN CALIFORNIA

Member of the H. J. Club Receives Letter From Redlands With Announcement.

Many of our readers would be interested in the following clipping from the Redlands Daily of California, received by a member of the H. J. club in this city of club Mrs. W. B. Campbell is an active member. "The Christmas dinner given yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Campbell at their home, 314 West Citrus avenue, was unique and delightful in many respects. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. A. Ryder of Pasadena, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Childs of Janesville, and J. D. Van Etten, all former schoolmates of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Campbell in Wisconsin. Many presents were distributed and early memories reviewed harking back to the dear old times when school ma'am's declamations and first love affairs seemed to bound existence."

WRITES COOPER HE IS NOW SATISFIED

W. A. Mahew of Clinton Decides He Does Not Want to Be Postmaster Again.

One of the amazing political situations not often noted in local politics is the sudden stand taken by Postmaster W. A. Mahew of Clinton. Mr. Mahew has been a most aggressive adherent of Cooper for many years past, in fact was the gentleman credited with having been sent to Beloit to settle the postoffice tangle there. He has been postmaster at Clinton for eight years past and his term is about to end. That he was a candidate for reappointment is known and that he had strong opposition is also rumored. His letter to Congressman Cooper in this view is surprising to local politicians, who have kept watch of the situation. He wrote asking that his name be dropped from consideration and said in part: "You have been a mighty good friend to me, and I don't propose to embarrass you by pressing for another appointment. I am grateful for what I have had and I want to show you that I can be as good a friend to you as you have been to me. So count me out of the list."

The spectacle of a man with enough and the realization of it, is declared by congressmen to be absolutely without precedent in their post-office experiences.

PARKER IS CHOSEN A REPRESENTATIVE

Janesville Man is One of the Eleven State Delegation to National Meeting.

Governor Davidson has named George S. Parker of this city, as one of the eleven men from Wisconsin to attend the convention for the extension of foreign commerce of the United States at Washington, D. C. Jan. 14. The other gentlemen named as members of the State delegation are: W. N. Fitzgerald, Clement B. Stern, A. W. Rich, William G. Bruce, August Vogel, all of Milwaukee; George A. Buckstaff, Oshkosh; W. T. Lewis, Racine; C. E. Partee, Burlington; Carl Johnson, Madison; Prof. James C. Monaghan, Washington. Prof. Monaghan was formerly a member of the faculty of the Wisconsin university.

MUCH MATERIAL IS BEING DISTRIBUTED

The Janesville Machine Company Has Had New Booklets Printed by Gazette Company.

The Janesville Machine company are sending to their numerous agents and branch houses the annual issue of printed matter descriptive of the various farm implements manufactured by them. This printed matter has recently come from the press of the printing department of the Gazette, a run of over 200,000 pamphlets in two colors for which two and a half tons of paper was used. Janesville receives much publicity through the quantities of printed matter distributed by the manufacturers in the city.

THREE PRIZES WON BY LOCAL ROOSTER

"Sandy" Buchanan's White Rock Adjudged the Best Bird Exhibited at the Delavan Show.

At the ninth annual poultry show at Delavan yesterday a White Rock rooster owned by "Sandy" Buchanan carried off the first prize in its class, the special prize for the best bird in the show, and the prize for the highest scoring bird—the points awarded it being 95. Other birds are being judged today and some more from the Buchanan coops as well as the White Rocks and Black Langshans exhibited by William McVicar will doubtless take premiums. About 800 specimens of chickens, turkeys, pigeons, and waterfowl—by far the largest showing ever made in the history of the Southeastern Wisconsin Association—are on exhibition. Some of the Janesville visitors at the show yesterday were: Mr. and Mrs. Philip Koch, Mr. and Mrs. John Santer, T. F. McKeigue, Horatio Nelson, William McVicar, James and William Buchanan, and Orville Morse.

"FORTY YEARS AGO" OF MUCH INTEREST

One Article in Gazette of January 4, 1867, Tells of Men Now Very Prominent.

The "Forty Years Ago" department of the Gazette is of interest to many besides those concerned in the early history of Janesville. Many articles deal with general conditions of two score years ago while others tell of men now prominent. In the Daily Gazette of Friday, January 4, 1867, is found the following: "New Law Firm. We understand that George R. Peck who is to leave the firm of Williams & Peck and enter upon the duties of Clerk of Court is to be succeeded by our friend John W. Sale. Mr. Sale is a graduate of the Ann Arbor Law School, and for the past year has been in the office of John R. Bennett, Esq. Besides a fine legal ability he is possessed of superior ability, and in his new relation cannot fail to become an excellent lawyer."

"We have always supposed that modesty was at a discount in law offices, so that this virtue in which Mr. Sale excels most of his fellows, will not, we fear, be appreciated. We know the new firm of Williams & Sale will be a popular one for the same reason, having popularity enough for any number of partners."

PERSONAL MENTION.

THINGS MADE IN THE BOWER CITY

With Certain Aspects of Manufacturing in General Will Be the Subject of Twilight Club Discussion.

"Things Made in Janesville" will be the subject considered by the Twilight Club at the session next Tuesday evening and an exhibition of samples of some of the products will in all probability be made. J. A. Craig is to be the leader and Prof. D. Earl Burchell of Wisconsin University will discuss "Practical Problems in Business Management." "A Bird's Eye View of Our Industries" will be the first topic and this will be followed by short talks on "The Fountain of Youth," "The Evolution of Negro Products," "My Lady Nicotine," "The Shady Side of Life," "How to Peddle Means to Support Your Board," and "Things That May Lighten Man's Burden." Prof. Burchell delivered an address before the Twilight Club in Appleton at its November meeting and is very well spoken of.

Telephone Case Continued: In circuit court today the examinations of witnesses in the action of the South Main street property-owners vs. the Rock County Telephone Co. was continued. Testimony was given this afternoon by W. H. Macdon, Robert Bostwick, and others.

DETECTIVES SEEK FREIGHT THIEVES

North-Western "Pinkertons" in Janesville Yesterday—Gum and Beans Stolen from Depot.

North-Western Railway detectives were in Janesville yesterday seeking to solve the mystery surrounding the disappearance of goods from the local freight depot recently. One box of gum, a portion of a case of canned baked beans and some soap was taken. Since the theft occurred one of the locks on the depot has been changed, it being suspected that the offenders entered by means of a duplicate key.

RAMSHACKLE BUNK CARS FOR SERVICE

Seventy Oldtimers Now Located in Gravel Pit Here Will Be Used for Carrying Freight.

To relieve the shortage of cars in the west and middle west every railroad company in the country is pressing every available piece of rolling stock into service. Old cars, once consigned to the scrap heap, are being repaired and used. In this class are seventy bunk cars, which were stored in the Janesville gravel pit in the fall. The stoves have been taken from them and shipped to Chicago. They will be hauled out in a few days and placed in service.

"Stated in the dingy cabin, the captain took a cigar from his pocket, bit off the end with a jerk and smoked in great puffs. Bradley waited for him to speak. The skipper's ill humor and obvious discontent had upon him the afternoon of the day the Thomas Doane reached port and had grown steadily worse. Each morning Captain Titcomb had spent at the office of Williams Bros., and when he returned to the schooner he had done little but smoke, scowl and pace the deck. The second mate was worried, but he asked no questions.

"Brad," said the captain, looking at the shabby carpet on the cabin floor, "we're going to have a new mate."

Bradley was surprised. "Is Mr. Bailey going to leave?" he asked. The old first mate had been as much a part of the Thomas Doane as her mainmast.

"There've given him the Arrow, the new schooner. He's going to run her."

"Why, why, Cap'n Ez, I thought she was promised to you."

"I thought so, too, but I missed my reck'nin', it seems. Williams—he ain't ha't the man his brother was—he wants me to wait till the other one, the four master, is off the ways. Then I can have her if I want her."

"But she won't be ready for six months, though I guess from what I hear she'll be worth waiting for. Who'll have the old Doane then?"

Captain Titcomb crossed his legs, but didn't answer. Instead he asked, "Brad, how would you like to sail under Bailey? You and him got long first rate. I wouldn't wonder if I could get you the second mate's berth on the Arrow. She's bran new and clean, not like this hencoop." And he kicked a stateroom door with emphasis.

Bradley did not hesitate. "I guess if you can stand the hencoop I can," he said decisively. "I'd rather wait with you, thank you."

"I don't know you'd better. Look here. And for the first time the captain raised his eyes. "You know I wouldn't try to influence you if I want for your own good. I honestly think 'twould be better for you if you sailed on the Arrow."

"Oh, because! Bailey's a good man and an A1 sailor."

"He isn't half the sailor you are nor half the man either."

"Much obliged. I'll stand for the sailor part, but I ain't so sure about the rest. Brad, sometimes I wish I hadn't stuck so close to 'owners' orders and had took a few observations on my own hook. Maybe then—But it's hard for an old dog to learn new tricks. I s'pose I'm a fool to worry. Money's 'bout all there is in this world, ain't it?"

"A good many folks seems to think it is."

"And other folks don't think any the less of 'em for it. Well, I've laid my course, and I'll stick to it till all's blue. Brad, will you, as a favor to me, chuck up your berth here and ship 'board the Arrow?"

"Cap'n Ez, if you want me to quit this peckety you'll have to heave me overboard; that's all!"

The skipper looked at the clear eyes and the firm jaw of the young six footer opposite.

"That goes, does it?" he asked.

"That does, Cap'n Ez, you've been the best friend I've ever had, except the old mads and—maybe one more. I don't want you to think I'm not ambitious, because I am. I'm just as anxious to make something of myself as you can be to have me, but I've made up my mind, and for the present, anyway, while you sail a vessel I sail with you—unless you really order me to quit."

The older man hesitated. "Well," he said after two or three puffs at the cigar, "I ought to order it p'raps, but I'll be hanged if I can. Brad Nickerson, I think as much of you as I would of a son, and your good opinion is worth—I don't d'blieve you know how much it's worth to me. But—Shake hands, will you?"

Puzzled and troubled, Bradley extended his hand, and the captain clasped it firmly in his own. For a moment it seemed that he was about to say something more, but he did not. Giving the second mate's hand a squeeze, he dropped it and settled back in his chair, smoking and apparently thinking hard. As he thought his lips tightened, and the scowl settled more firmly between his brows. Five minutes of silence, and then the skipper threw the half finished cigar into a corner and rose to his feet. His tone was sharp, and there was no trace of the feeling so recently manifested.

"We sail tomorrow mornin'," he said, stepping to the companion ladder. "The new first mate'll be here tonight. His name's Burke."

Bradley did not move. "Just a minute, Cap'n Ez," he faltered. "You—you—I know it's none of my business, but—Well, you understand, I guess. You're in trouble—anybody can see that. Won't you let me help you out?"

The captain paused with his foot on the ladder. "My troubles are my own," he answered, without looking back. "You be thankful you ain't got any. And here!" the tone was almost savage. "You take my advice and obey orders, and don't ask questions."

He went on deck immediately and, after a moment, Bradley followed him. The rebuilt was so unexpected and so undeserved, the circumstances considered, that it hurt the young man keenly. His pride was touched, and he made up his mind that Captain Titcomb should have no further cause for complaint so far as interference by his second officer was concerned. As for the captain, he kept to himself and said little to any one during the afternoon.

The new first mate came on board that evening. He was a thick set, heavy man, who talked a great deal.

"Brad, we're going to have a new mate," swore profusely and laughed loudly at his own jokes. He seemed to know his business and, as the captain would have said, "caught him" at once.

They sailed the next morning, and by the time the tug left them, Bradley fancied that he noticed a difference in the state of affairs aboard the schooner. The usual rigid discipline seemed to be lacking. There was no rebellion or sign of mutiny, but merely a general shittiness that Mr. Burke did not seem to notice. Strange to say, Captain Titcomb did not notice it either, or, if he did, said nothing. Bradley did not interfere. He had not forgotten the advice to "obey orders and ask no questions."

There was a good wind and a smooth sea, and the captain drove the Thomas Doane for all she was worth. By the afternoon of the following day they were in Vineyard sound. Bradley's suspicions had by this time come to be almost certainties. For two or three sailors to show signs of drunkenness on the first morning out of port was nothing strange, but to have those symptoms more pronounced the evening of the second day was proof that there were bottles in the forecastle. But Captain Titcomb, usually the first to scent the presence of these abominations and to punish their owners, now, apparently, was unaware of their presence. And the first mate, too, either did not see or did not care.

Bradley was standing by the forecastle just at dusk that evening when a sailor bumped violently into him in passing. The second mate spoke sharply to the offender, and the answer he received was impudent and surly.

"Here you!" exclaimed Bradley, seizing the man by the shoulder and whirling him violently around, "do you know who you're talking to? Speak to me again like that, and I'll break you in two."

The man—he was a new hand—mumbled a reply to the effect that he "hadn't meant to say nothin'."

"Well, don't say it again. Stand up. You're drunk. Now, where did you get your liquor?"

"Ain't got none, sir."

"You're a liar. Stand up or you'll lie down for a good while. Anybody with a nose could smell rum if you pussed a mile to windward. Where did you get it?"

The sailor began a further protestation, but Bradley choked it off and shook him savagely. The first mate, hearing the scuffle, came hurrying up.

"What's the row, Mr. Nickerson?" he asked.

"This man's drunk, and I want to know where the rum came from."

Mr. Burke scowled fiercely. "Look here," he shouted, "is that so? Are you drunk?"

"No, sir."

"You're mighty close to it. Why"—and here the first mate swore steadily for a full minute. "Do you know what I'd do to a man that brought rum aboard a vessel of mine? I'd use his blankety-blank hide for a spare top-sil and feed the rest of his carcass to the dogfish. Git out of here, and remember I'm watchin' you sharp."

He gave the fellow a kick that sent him flying, and, turning to Bradley, said in a confidential whisper: "Ain't it queer how a shore drunk'll stick to a quon? I've seen 'em come aboard so full that they stayed so for a week afterward."

"I think they've got the liquor down for'd here."

"I guess not. If I thought so, I'd kill the whole"—half dozen descriptive adjectives—"lot. They can't play with me, blank, blank 'em!"

But in spite of Mr. Burke's threats Bradley wasn't satisfied. He believed that if the first mate had let him alone he would have found the liquor. However, he thought if neither the skipper nor Mr. Burke cared it was none of his business. But he was uneasy nevertheless.

By 9 o'clock the signs of drunkenness were so plain that even the first mate had to admit the fact. Only a very few of the men were strictly sober. One of these was the big Swede, Swensen. Oddly enough, this man had stuck to Captain Titcomb's schooner every voyage since one trip on which the skipper had nipped the fight out of him. The novelty of a good sound thrashing was, apparently, just what the giant had needed, and for the man who had "licked" him he entertained tremendous respect and almost love.

"Cap'n Ez, he knock the tar out of me," said Swensen. "He stand no foolin'. He's a man. Hey?"

He liked Bradley, too, and had presented the latter with a miniature model of a three masted schooner in a bottle, beautifully done and such "puttering" work that it was a wonder how his big, clumsy fingers could have made it.

But though Swensen and the Portuguese cook and one or two more were sober, the rest of the crew were not. Mr. Burke confessed as much to Bradley.

"They've got rum with 'em, all right," he whispered. "But we'll be to Boston tomorrow, and there ain't no use startin' a row till daylight. Then some of these smart Ales'll find out who's who in a hurry or my fist don't weigh what it used to. Better not say nothin' to the skipper," he added. "No use to worry him."

It was odd advice from a mate, but as Bradley could see, to his astonishment, there was no need of telling Captain Titcomb. It was plain enough that the latter knew his crew's condition and deliberately ignored it. Men stumbled past him, and he looked the other way. Simple orders were bungled, and he did not reprove. Only once that evening did his wrath blaze out in the old manner. A sailor was ordered by him to do something and, instead of the dutiful "Aye, aye, sir," he replied with a muttered curse.

The next instant Captain Ez's fist was between his eyes, and he fell, to be jerked to his feet again and back to the rail with the skipper's hand twisted in his shirt collar.

"Hang you!" said the captain between his teeth. "I'll—I swear I'll—"

Mr. Burke came running and whispered eagerly in his commander's ear. Captain Titcomb's arm straightened, and the sailor was thrown across the deck.

"Go for'd!" roared the skipper, "and if you want to live you keep out of my sight! I can't help it, Burke. I've got some self respect left yet."

That was all, and Bradley wondered. Under such circumstances accidents were bound to occur. But the one that did occur was serious. Bradley was below when it happened. He usually took the first watch, but tonight Captain Titcomb said he would take it, and Mr. Burke would stay up with him for awhile. So the second mate turned in. He was awakened by a racket on deck and the sound of voices and footsteps on the companion ladder. Opening his stateroom door, he saw four men descending the ladder, carrying a fifth in their arms.

"What's the matter?" asked Bradley. "Who's hurt?"

"It's the skipper," replied one of the men in a frightened voice. "He fell and hurt his head. He—"

Bradley sprang into the cabin and saw Captain Titcomb unconscious and with the blood running from an ugly cut on his forehead.

"For God's sake!" he began, but was interrupted by Burke, who, with a very white face, was descending the ladder.

"Hush up!" commanded the first mate. "Don't make a row. Taint nothin' serious, I guess. Jest cussed foolishness. Put him on the locker there, you."

This is what had happened: The schooner was passing out of the sound, and, as the night was black and hazy, they were using the lead frequently. The Thomas Doane had a high after deck, and to reach the waist one must descend a five foot ladder. A sailor, not too sober, had thrown the lead and in passing had with the line had fouled it at the ladder. Captain Titcomb, losing his temper at the man's clumsiness, had run toward him; tripped in the line and pitched head first over the fellow's shoulder to the main deck. The sailor's body had broken the fall somewhat, and the skull was not fractured, but it was bad enough.

The cook, who had helped bring the captain into the cabin, lingered after the first mate had gone. Bradley questioned him about the accident.

"Thoma, he done it," said the cook. "The line, she git mess up by the—"

"He was drunk," broke in Bradley. "He's been drunk all the afternoon. Isn't that so?"

The cook looked hastily at the ladder, then at the captain. Then, nodding emphatically, he whispered: "Ya-as, sir. They most all drunk. I never seen so much drink on schooner—not on Cap'n Titcomb's schooner, anyway, and I sail with him for five year."

But Bradley would not go to bed. He was worried about the captain and even more worried about the schooner. He did not like Mr. Burke, and he was by no means sure—judging by what he had seen—that the mate knew how to handle a crew. About 2 o'clock he decided to go on deck.

Bradley leaned on the rail and looked over the water toward where the shore should be. As he stood there, the haze blew aside for a moment, and he saw not more than two miles away and ahead of the schooner the twinkling of a light. Then it disappeared again. He walked aft. One of the new hands was at the wheel, and there was a distinct smell of rum in the vicinity.

"Who gave you that course?"

"Mr. Burke, sir."

Burke was standing by the fore-sheets, looking over the side. He started when Bradley touched his arm.

"Excuse me, Mr. Burke," said the second mate. "Where are we?"

"Turned the Rip an hour or so ago," Burke's tone was distinctly unpleasant. "What are you doing here?"

"I couldn't sleep, so I came on deck a minute. Isn't she pretty close in? I thought I saw the Skagit light just now."

FROM DENVER TO SALT LAKE CITY

Mormon Temple and Tabernacle off to our right. We arrived in the city about one o'clock p. m., and as the Mormons held church at two o'clock we attended and heard that wonderful organ which was at one time considered the largest in the world, but is now second largest. While we were in Salt Lake City we visited several of the parks, the fish hatcheries and the great white Salt Palace. One of the most important things of interest here is Temple Block. In this is the Temple, the Tabernacle, Assembly hall, Bureau of Information, and a quaint adobe building covering the United States meridian stone and astronomical instruments for taking observations. At the southeast corner of the block is a stone marking the base from which Salt Lake City is surveyed. The Temple Block is surrounded by a stone and adobe wall. The Latter Day Saints have four temples and nearly four hundred other places of worship. The Temple, and smaller buildings connected cost over four million dollars. The Temple is built of granite brought from a quarry about twenty miles distant. Before the railway was built to a quarry the huge blocks of stone were drawn by ox teams and it took four yoke of oxen four days to bring one single large stone from the quarry to the Temple grounds. The Temple has six towers three of which face the east and three face the west. On the top of the east central tower is the representation of an angel proclaiming the gospel. The Temple is closed to the general public as it is in use most of the time. It took five years to build the Tabernacle, the roof of which consists of a single wooden arch. It will seat, comfortably, 8000 people. The organ which I previously mentioned is of home workmanship and chiefly of native woods and has 5500 pipes. Organ recitals are given at stated intervals. Other points of interest in the city are Eagle Gate, formerly the entrance to the private grounds of Pres. Brigham Young, Brigham Young's monument, the Lion House, the Guards House, which Pres. Brigham Young built to receive friends and visitors, but which he never used.

"Saltair Beach is eighteen miles from Salt Lake City and is located right on the lake. The city is not now on the lake at all. We spent one day at the beach and had a delightful time. The name Saltair is very appropriate as the air is filled with a salty smell and the bottom of the lake is filled with crystals of salt the same as holes of fresh water are filled with sand. This lake is 95 miles long and 65 miles wide. Thousands of people go in bathing here every day. The water is so filled with salt that it is impossible for a person to sink; the only danger is in getting stranded. While we were in Saltair we saw the sun set and it was the most beautiful sight I ever saw; it is simply indescribable, its beauty holds one almost spellbound till the light fades away entirely."

"We stayed in Salt Lake City eight days and while there the largest picnic of the year was held, the anniversary of the coming of the Mormons across the mountains and settling in this valley. From here we came home, and although we had a good time as well as a profitable one, it seemed good to get home once more."

Burr Oak, Jan. 3.—Mrs. W. L. Hoague and Miss Orrie Murwin took dinner with Seth Pope's family Wednesday last.

Miss Cassie Scofield and Grace Howe spent Monday afternoon at L. Hubbell's.

Edgerton McGraw and daughter went to Edgerton Monday afternoon.

George Shibley returned to his home in California after a two weeks' visit in this burg.

Chas. Schönowere made a business trip to Porter one day last week.

Mrs. Elton Stone and daughter spent Sunday with her sister at this place.

Miss Edna Jones is spending the week with Mary Pope.

J. Thompson's family ate New Year's dinner with relatives in Porter. Gustav Handtke was in this burg yesterday.

The sudden thaw spoiled the skating somewhat. A few young people were to enjoy a skating party in Mary Pope's but it will be postponed to a future date.

NORTHWEST LIMA.

Northwest Lima, Jan. 3.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Verhalen departed for Chicago this week to make their future home in that city. For the past four months they have been the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Urban.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Godfrey and family spent New Year's day in Whitewater.

Arthur Brady is slowly recovering from his recent illness.

Vera Wagner, Gladys Kimble and little Cora Piech are on the sick list. A horse belonging to John Urban choked to death while eating last week.

J. Vance is hauling stone and gravel getting ready to build a large addition to his barn next spring.

Mrs. James Brady and Mrs. Rice Kimble visited E. G. Bingham at Koshkonong Saturday.

"Had dyspepsia or indigestion for years. No appetite, and what I did eat distressed me terribly. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me."—J. H. Walker, Sunbury, Ohio.

Don't let the baby suffer from eczema, sores or any itching of the skin. Doan's Ointment gives instant relief, cures quickly. Perfectly safe for children. All druggists sell it.

Constipation causes headache, nausea, dizziness, languor, heart palpitation. Drastic physics gripe, sicken, weaken the bowels and don't cure. Doan's Regulax acts gently and cures constipation. 25 cents. Ask your druggist.

Never can tell when you'll mash a finger or suffer a cut, bruise, burn or scald. Be prepared. Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil instantly relieves the pain—quickly cures the wound.

TO READERS OF THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL:

Did you read the article published by The Ladies' Home Journal in May 1904, attacking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription? Have you seen the statement more recently made by Mr. Bok, the Editor of that magazine that his company "has not paid a single penny to Dr. R. V. Pierce's concern" * * * in settlement of any suit? We wish you to know the truth. The facts are these:

Four days after the article in May 1904, appeared, Dr. Pierce's company sued The Ladies' Home Journal publishers for libel. The trial was had in April last. Dr. Pierce proved that the attack made by The Ladies' Home Journal was false. He proved that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription does not, and never did contain either alcohol or any of the injurious drugs which The Ladies' Home Journal falsely stated it did contain. This was so conclusively shown that the attorneys for The Ladies' Home Journal were forced to admit it. The jury rendered a verdict against The Ladies' Home Journal in favor of Dr. Pierce's company for $16,000.00. This was a complete vindication of Doctor Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription." It judicially established that the libel was wholly false, and without any justification.

Dr. Pierce, however, believed that his company is justly entitled to a verdict for a much larger sum. Through his attorneys he has, therefore, applied to the court for a new trial of the case. For this reason, and for this reason alone, has The Ladies' Home Journal not yet paid "a single penny to Dr. R. V. Pierce's concern." Dr. Pierce has simply chosen not to collect the judgment until the motion for a new trial has been decided.

In the light of these facts does not this boastful statement that it "has not paid a single penny to Dr. R. V. Pierce's concern" look like a cheap and common bluff, a half truth intended to mislead you?

During the trial of the libel suit, in fact the "Favorite Prescription" stands alone as being the only medicine for woman's special ailments which has any such professional endorsement of its several ingredients which is generally recognized as entitled to much more weight than any amount of lay, or non-professional testimonials. The "Favorite Prescription" stands alone as the only non-secret, medicine for woman's ailments. Its manufacturers are not afraid to publish its ingredients, as they do, broadcast—thus courting the fullest scrutiny.

The "Favorite Prescription" has been on trial in court and came out fully vindicated as containing no harmful or habit-forming drugs.

What other medicine for women could stand such a test?

No invalid women can afford to accept a secret nostrum of unknown composition for this tried and proven remedy of known composition. Leading physicians often prescribe it because they know exactly what it is made of, and that the ingredients of which it is composed are the very best known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and delicate ailments.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is not advertised as a "Cure All" but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a superior and most positive remedy for one of the most common and easily recognized weaknesses, derangements, irregularities and painful disorders peculiar to women. It is a powerful, yet gently acting, invigorating, tonic and strengthening medicine. For worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, whether it be from too frequent bearing of children or from much worry, care, or over exertion of any kind, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most efficient in building up the strength, regulating all the womanly functions, banishing pain and bringing about a regular and healthy, vigorous condition of the whole female system.
